“Above the Clouds” Nuwara Eliya

Nuwara Eliya is an oval-shaped plateau, more than 6,000 feet above sea level in the Central Massif of Sri Lanka. Subject to cold winds, this flavours the tea with slight wintergreen characteristics. Aptly, the name means ‘Above The Clouds’.

Nuwara Eliya was ‘discovered’ in 1818 and sits on a plateau that is 1868m (6128ft) above sea-level. Due to the difficulties in reaching Nuwara Eliya it was effectively uninhabited at that time.

The City of Nuwara Eliya, which is classed as Central Province was founded by Samuel Baker, a famous explorer of the River Nile, in 1846. Nuwara Eliya’s elevation, climate, soil type and geology, as well as the abundance of tea producing and processing skills in that area, means that Nuwara Eliya produces some of the best teas that Sri Lanka has to offer.

This Nuwara Eliya Broken Orange Pekoe Tea is known for its delicate and charming flavour and the cold winds which blow across the plateau will even, on occasion, impart a breathy winter-green characteristic to this delightful tea.
